WITH A SONG IN THEIR HEART

Under the able direction of Sidney Straight, Lincoln College had a very well balanced chorus. Their singing helped make many assemblies worth attending.

THE THEATRE IS THE HOUSE OF LIFE

All the world's a stage. Yes, and that portion of the world situated at Lincoln, is also part of the stage and it has its own little group that "struts and frets" upon that stage. Although the actors and actresses who take part in the Theatre Guild productions are strictly amateurs, they still, principally because of the success of their amateur productions, have the privilege of being called "actors and actresses."

The activity under the direction of Sidney Straight has put on to date such productions as "Joan of Arc", "Submerged", "Suppressed Desires", and "Cracked Ice."

HONOR SOCIETY

In the spring of '48, the College faculty, for the first time in the school's history voted to hold an honors convocation honoring those students who had achieved an average of 3.5 for one and one-half semesters. This convocation was held on October 12, 1948. Jean Boone, Nancy McCullough, Catherine Lessman, Conway Spanton, and Dale Awick were the students honored. In February, a dinner was given for these students. Dale Awick was elected president. Jean Boone, secretary. Conway Spanton was appointed to write the constitution, and David Stevenson was named faculty advisor. April 26, the first convocation by the new society was held. Patricia Kodatt, Clifford Bradley, and Don Whitnah were inducted. The society plans to affiliate with Phi Theta Kappa, a national Junior College Honor Fraternity.

EIKOSI KORAI

Eikosi Korai, Lincoln College women's society, is an organization established to promote leadership and service among the women students. Members are accepted on the basis of points secured for service, scholarship, and character. Officers: Bernadine Storm, president; Catherine Lessman, secretary; Jean Boone, treasurer; Dorothy Hagen, vice-president.

The most notable accomplishments of the '48-'49 Lynx cagers were their upset victory over the strong Springfield Junior College team which broke their unbeaten streak that extended well into last season, and their rousing triumph over their crosstown rivals, the L.B.I. preachers, in the final match between the two. Both were tough ball games and provided many thrills for the fans.

Standouts of the year were Harold Clark, sharpshooting forward, and Norm Pauske, veteran guard.

As the smallest members of the Illinois-Missouri conference, the Lynx managed to win the fourth spot in the final standing by taking four games while dropping six, two by less than two points.

GOOD TIMES FOR EVERYONE

College dances would not be complete without the social committee backing them. Each year the college highlights four outstanding dances, three of which are formal. The social committee makes the plans for dances and with help from the students the social activities are enjoyable both for students and faculty.
